I am presently supervising three funded PhD-projects in Leiden. One is by Gareth O’Neill, selected by LUCLE and funded from a NWO-grant awarded to LUCLE’s Graduate Programme (co-supervised by Dr. Eithne Carlin). The second is a project awarded by the National Graduate School LOT to Saskia Lensink (jointly supervised by prof. Niels Schiller and myself). The third is Alex Reuneker (co-supervised with Dr. Ronny Boogaart), whose project was selected by NWO for its new program ‘Doctoral Grant for Teachers’ in 2015.

I am furthermore supervising two self-funded PhD students. One is Johnathan D. Brown (lecturer at Yamanashi Gakuin University, Japan), on the rhetorical structure of texts written by Japanese learners of English as a foreign language (co-supervised by prof. William Rozycki at Yamanashi Gakuin University); defence expected in 2018. The second is Ami Okabe (Japanese scholarship), who just started on a comparative investigation of posture verbs in German and Dutch (co-supervised by Dr. Jenny Audring).

TEACHING

Since 1978 I have taught courses on many different topics, at all levels of academic education, nationally and internationally.

Elementary level

- introduction to linguistics
- traditional sentence analysis
- generative grammar
- psycholinguistics

Since 2004, I am actively involved in developing the teaching programme of the Leiden PRE-University College for motivated and talented high school students. I teach some parts in two of the five courses, and from 2005 until 2007, I was coordinator of one of these.

In 2004, prof. Hans Hulshof and I received a grant from LUF/Gratama Foundation, for editorial support to produce an introductory high school textbook for linguistics (Taalkunde voor de tweede fase van het VWO, Amsterdam University Press 2006; with an instruction for teachers).

Undergraduate level (after year 1)

- corpus linguistics
- discourse analysis
- psycholinguistics
- construction grammar
- semantics and pragmatics
- specific topics: language use in electronic media, language & gender, stylistics

From 2003 until 2008, I have been teaching a minor programme (“Systems and memes”, colloquium) for selected students from all fields of science, on approaches to philosophy and history of science, in particular evolutionary approaches to language, culture, and cognition, in which special attention is being paid to similarities and differences between sciences of language and culture on the one hand, and natural sciences on the other.

From 2007 until 2009, I have been coordinator and instructor in a course of the Leiden Honours Programme, covering recent research on the evolution of human language and the cognitive consequences of language: “Communication: Nature and Culture, Conditions and Consequences”. From 2009 until September 2013, I was coordinator of the Honours College track offered by LUCL. In September 2013, the board of the Leiden Faculty of Humanities appointed me as academic director (“profileringshoogleraar”) of the newly developed Honours Programme for the entire Faculty, the Humanities Lab (see <http://www.humanitieslab.nl> for more information on this programme).

Graduate level

- Advanced general courses on language and cognition, typology, and on theories of language (syntax, semantics, and pragmatics).
- Advanced courses on specific topics: adverbial phrases, information structure, passive and causative constructions, accentuation, subordination and clause combining, metaphors and cultural cognitive models, perspective and (inter)subjectivity.

For the Dutch national graduate school of linguistics LOT I have taught courses individually as well as jointly with others, on my own research topics and some general ones (overview of cognitive linguistics; connectionism in psychology and linguistics). In the Summer school of 2005 (Leiden), I taught “Fixed Expressions: theory, usage and process” together with Joost Schilperoord from Tilburg University. In the Winter School of 2010 (January, Amsterdam, Free University), I have taught “Constructions: An integrated approach”. In the Summer School of 2015 (June 15-26, Leuven, Belgium), I taught “New Directions in Usage-Based Linguistics: Language as Behavior, Culture as Nature”.

Internationally, I have been invited to teach (courses varying between two days and three weeks full time) at:

- Linguistic Institute of the Linguistic Society of America (Berkeley, CA, USA), 2009.
- Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology (Leipzig, Germany), 2008;
- Finnish graduate school in language studies (Langnet) and Scandinavian network of linguists (NordLing) (University of Helsinki, Finland), 2008;
